About

While learning full-stack development, I spent a lot of time building real projects—things like interactive apps with React, Node.js, and MongoDB, and working with REST APIs. I enjoy turning ideas into clean, functional interfaces that are fast, user-friendly, and accessible.

Along the way, I also volunteered at Chabad Houses, where I improved my communication skills and got comfortable working with people from different backgrounds—something that’s helped me collaborate better in team settings.
